

Joseph Oligmueller Scholarship

Joe Oligmueller, life-time resident of West Point had a true passion and love of softball and baseball whether he was playing, coaching or watching the game. He played fast-pitch softball for over 40-years and he spent many hours coaching the game to instill his passion onto a younger generation.

Giving his children a Catholic education was also very important to him and his wife Caroline so giving this scholarship to a West Point Guardian Angels Central Catholic senior is very meaningful.

Award: 1-$500 scholarship to a senior baseball, softball or student manager who is attending college. Funds will be sent directly to the college prior to your starting semester/quarter.

Criteria:

- West Point Guardian Angels Central Catholic High School senior who is attending college
- High School baseball player, softball player or student manager
- Complete the essay question (100-300 words)

Essay Question: Tell us about a moment in your personal life or during your baseball/softball career that sparked your “love of the game”. How did that experience define the person you are today?
